HISTROVE

A CYPHERPUNK'S MANIFESTO

Eric Hughes
9 March 1993

Privacy is necessary for an open society in the electronic age; privacy is not anarchy.

Privacy is the power to selectively reveal oneself to the world.

An open society is a society in which people can freely determine for themselves what information about themselves to reveal, where to reveal it, and to whom; privacy is not anarchy. A private person is not a secretive person. A private person decides what to reveal and when. Privacy is the power to selectively reveal oneself to the world.
